

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF RIVER

Autobiography of A River. My life is quite similar to that of a man. I am born in high mountains where coot and herons live. I am quite active and.

One of the most major events in Darius 's life was his expedition to discipline Athens and Eretria for their support in the Ionian Revolt. I have importance in my own way. Related Articles:. You may laugh to think what is the value of the autobiography of a river. Now I am self-assured that because of me no one will get in problem. There are also several health resorts in my upper course. Some examples of primary research are chronologies and governmental documents. Again I play the part of a creator. People have built ports here. I am that bigger stream. They regard me as very sacred. Leaving the upper plains behind I flow down through the lower plains. They worship the deities in those temples. I am full of life and vigor. After few weeks some engineer built dams on me. They have importance in their own way. From the old age time people uses water for drinking ,cooking etc. I carry down sediments. There are many villages and cities who settles there beside me. Some have commercial importance. Hundred of pilgrims bathe in my holy water in great devotion. Even birds drinks my water. In his autobiography Twelve Years as a Slave, Solomon Northup, who was kidnapped and sold to slave masters, describes the brutality of slavery.